Helping churches to celebrate a 21st century faith

Churches are facing many challenges in this twenty first century. Advances in medicine, science and technology raise questions about the place of religion in our modern world. Our society is experiencing changes affecting personal morality and relationships. People in our world continue to suffer from violence injustice and inequality. Our planet faces environmental catastrophe. All these issues raise big questions about God and faith.

Yet the life and teachings of Jesus still offer hope and guidance. Peoples of different faiths and of none search for meaning and love. Many Churches are seeking a new vision and understanding of Christianity, which does not try to escape from the challenges of the modern world but embraces new insights and which can speak to our contemporary society.

So who are we and how might we help your church?
